ASKS PRESIDENT TO SAVE COAL PACT

IS LEWIS' SUGGESTION TO THE NATION'S CHIEFTAIN

Threat of Action By Union Is Uttered As Alternative of Failure On Uncle Sam's Part—Agreements Violated By Producing Interests Is Charged—Fruits of Contract Lauded.

President Coolidge has been asked by the United Mine Workers whether the government desires to intervene to maintain the integrity of the Jacksonville soft coal wage agreement and, if not, whether the union men would be justified in taking their own measures to enforce it.

The inquiry was made in a letter from John Lewis, head of the miners' organization, dated November 21. Lewis stated that the three year agreement expiring March 31, 1927, was reached with the co-operation of the departments of justice, commerce and labor and added that the annual report of the secretary of commerce referred to the compact as insuring industrial peace in the industry and that no better example of cooperation to secure the elimination of national waste could be presented.

Lewis asserted that "substantial coal producing interests' signatories to the arrangement, have violated and repudiated their written word of honor and in so doing have impaired the integrity of the wage structure thruout the entire bituminous industry." Naming the Pittsburgh Coal Co., Consolidation Coal Co., the Bethlehem Mines Corporation and the coal interests of the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh railroad as among those he alleges have dishonored their wage agreements, Lewis asserted that their "savage and dishonest acts" have added to the burden of those honest coal operators who desire in every particular to operate in accordance with their wage agreement.

Among other things the letter said: "The federal government upon occasion and from time to time, has intervened in the coal industry. Not alone the operators but the miners have felt the weight of its influence and regulated their policies accordingly. In all respect the mine workers now inquire whether the federal government desires to intervene to maintain the morality and integrity of the existing agreement in the bituminous coal industry."

"If it should occur that the federal government is disposed not to intervene for the protection of a meritorious wage agreement, might the mine workers believe their own efforts in that direction may be considered as being justified?"

Lewis declined to discuss his letter. When asked for an explanation of the last paragraph, in which he asked the president whether the mine workers would be justified in taking their own measures to enforce the Jacksonville agreement should the government not feel disposed to intervene, the miners' leader said:

"Let the letter speak for itself. I have nothing further to say at this time."

This is the second reference to the federal government of the soft coal wage scale troubles, but in the former case, Secretaries Davis of the labor department and Hoover of the commerce department were named, and no action resulted.

At that time, cabinet members said that it was not the duty of the executive to enforce any civil contract, tho naturally, the administration stood for the keeping of wage agreements by all concerned. John L. Lewis, president of the miners' union, in public addresses, declared that large corporations were breaking the scale and that serious trouble would ensue if matters were not corrected.

The Jacksonville wage agreement, which covered all the union coal fields was drawn up in 1924 to run for three years and incorporated a scale of wages which was first laid down by a federal commission after the coal strike of 1919.

Non-union fields, located chiefly in Pennsylvania and territory south of the Ohio river continued to operate on a lower wage rate. After many months of part time or no operation during the last year, a number of former union coal miners began working again, but set aside the union scale for a lower one. The miners' union has strike activity aimed at all of these operations and a number of legal proceedings have been instituted in northern West Virginia concerning the strikes.

The last session of the Pickaway Columbus, O., Nov. 23, (UP).—Mrs. Myrtle Smith, 26, was killed here last night when she leaped from an automobile driven by Mrs. George L. Parrish, who had accused Mrs. Smith of alienating her husband's affections.

Mrs. Parrish, in a statement to police, said she had remonstrated with her husband and Mrs. Smith but both persisted in their relations. Last night Mrs. Parrish followed her husband, she said, and saw him meet Mrs. Smith.

Mrs. Parrish said she accosted them and Parrish fled. She asked Mrs. Smith to get into her machine. While they were driving about, Mrs. Parrish said she plead with Mrs. Smith to forsake Parrish.

"Mrs. Smith refused," Mrs. Parrish told detectives, "and leaped from the automobile when I told her I would take her to the police station."

As Mrs. Smith jumped an automobile driven by A. E. Poston passed over her body.

Trapper Takes Flivver Into Haunts of Eskimo

Herb Lake, Man.—Far to the north of here, a small automobile chugs its way over the ice and snow, the first vehicle of its kind to invade the land of the Eskimo.

It was taken into the far north by John Harris, who has returned to his home there after marketing a large number of furs here.

On his visit to civilization, Harris brought his Eskimo wife and three children, "just to give them a treat," and if wide and wondering eyes were a criterion, it was a treat for them.

When he returned, he took with him the small automobile, besides a large stock of provisions and goods, to be used in trading with the natives. So far as is known here, it will be the first automobile in this section of the north.

Harris also took a power boat built in sections, and when he left the railroad, he planned to put the boat to gether, transfer the automobile engine to the boat, and proceed under that power as far as possible.

Harris said he would have no trouble running the automobile over the hard packed snow as he made his rounds in trading with the Eskimos.

DARBYVILLE TEMPERANCE WOMEN MEET

Interesting Session With Mrs. Jane Pherson—Report of State Convention.

November 18, the Darbyville W. C. T. U., met with Mrs. Jane Pherson and daughter, Mrs. Jennie Reeves. It was a beautiful day and the ladies of the Union and several visitors, members of the Williamsport Union, came. The devotions were led by vice president, Gladys Carpenter. Reading 3d Psalm, and everyone joined in singing. After the report of the state convention at Akron, October 20 to 23. Akron's mayor gave us a real welcome and said he loved the white ribbon and for what it stood. He was the son of a white ribbon mother. The president of the Council of Churches gave us a hearty welcome and he, too, was the son of a white ribboner.

Mrs. Case welcomed us for the Federation of clubs. Another delightful welcome was from the pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church in which we met. He thinks every Christian should be a temperance worker and teach law observance and the glory of living in the country that has outlawed the liquor traffic. He too, was the son of a white ribbon saint.

A rousing welcome was given by the superintendent of schools of Akron a city of 215,000 people. He believes in the Bible being read in the public schools. The school board of Akron, appropriated $15,000 to teach foreign mothers in the homes a little of English, about Old Glory, and how to care for the home and babies. These foreign mothers need a little English very much; many times they learn very fast, are young and anxious to learn. Superintendent McCord said he too had pilloved his head on the white ribbon in childhood.

So many departments are to be learned about. Each delegate attends the conference in which she is most interested and this is hard to tell sometimes, because we want to learn about different ones.

The state superintendent of S. T. I. found many wanting more information about essay work in schools. 20380 essays were written in Ohio the past year. Let it be 40,000 this year. The first national prize essay was written by Thomas White, of Defiance college. One state prize was won by a Pickaway pupil, Violet Ginder, of Darbyville high school. It was a good convention with fine speakers; Judge Florence Allen and Congressman Cooper made good speeches and several others. There were 601 delegates.

People like to be kept guessing. Curiosity, the love of the mysterious and baffling in our natures, the desire for thrills, have made the mystery play a fixed part of the playgoer's rations. Human nature is pretty much the same and the trend of plays has been such, since the medieval "miracle plays" that the present day mystery play occupies a very secure place on the stage.

"Spooks," the mystery thriller coming to the Hartman theater, Columbus, for the week of November 23, is a different type of mystery play from "The Bat," "The Cat and the Canary" and "The Gorilla" in that it plays up the "spooky" elements and the traditional manifestations of the unseen world, rather than killings.

"Spooks" comes to Columbus after long and successful runs in New York at the Cort theater and in Chicago at the Playhouse.

Coates Gwynne heads a talented New York cast, composed of Ethel Tole, Dixie Loftin, Ruby Blackburn, Carl Way, Cliff Clifford, Alma Blondo Robert LaLonde, Arthur Olmi, Alfred Atwell and John J. Schwarz.

A delectable detective puzzle will be served, enlivened by some new tricks, with some amusing banter, references to radio and a love climax to make the whole thing a savory dish to set before playgoers.

Matinee on Thanksgiving day and Saturday. Mail orders will be given prompt attention.

NEW ENGLAND SUPPER BIG SUCCESS

The Parish House looked very attractive last evening when the Ladies' Guild of St. Philip's Church gave a New England Supper and Parcel Post sale. Lewis and Miss Harriett Marfield were in charge of the parcel post sale. The affair was delightful and also a very remunerative one. The receipts were between $200 and $300.

WHAT IS MUSIC?

Tremendous Strides in Science of Acoustics Open New Vistas to Art of Musical Expression.

WHAT is music? It is surprising how few people can give a coherent answer to this question.

Yet in a way it is not remarkable, for music embodies far more than the simple physical elements of which it is composed.

The dictionary says: "Music is the science and art of the rhythmic combination of tones, vocal or instrumental, embracing melody and harmony for the expression of anything possible by this means, but chiefly anything emotional." That, perhaps, is as good a general definition as one can hope to formulate. But even that leaves much unsaid.

The truth is that so many radical changes are being made constantly in the composition and reproduction of music, that our ideas about it are forced to change with them. There was a day, in the dim beginnings of recorded time, when primitive forest dwellers regarded the harsh monotonic screechings of their bone flutes and the thumpings of their crude drums as music of the highest order.

Today we have our highly organized sonatas and symphonic poems rendered by great orchestras containing scores of varieties of instruments, and not only produced but reproduced any number of times by the talking machine, or spread instantaneously over the face of the globe by the radio.

The Dawn of Music

The first music undoubtedly was the modulation of the human voice in song. In the beginning man found that he could get more out of his vocal cords than the guttural grunts which constituted his primitive mode of speech. He discovered that he could produce sounds both higher and lower than those used in the accustomed intercourse of the spoken word. Charmed with the novel and not unpleasant effect, he experimented in various arrangements and combinations of these new notes. This simple melody, echoing in some smoky cavern, was the first music.

The invention of the various musical instruments followed at a much later date. Tradition has it that the lyre, or harp, was discovered by the vibration of the wind in the dried membranes stretched across the shell of a dead tortoise. The development of the flute and other wind instruments is supposed to have originated in the sound made by the river breeze blowing across hollow reeds on the water's edge.

Many centuries passed before man began to apply rational thought to music. Slowly it was organized into a science. Learned men studied it and found that sound is due to vibrations which travel through the air and enter the ear. It was found that these sound vibrations have three distinct qualities, and that every sound has its own individual combination of these three qualities. Moreover it was discovered that these vibrations may be combined together according to mathematical rule, producing what is known as Harmony. Later Harmony became so ramified and complex that it is now regarded as a separate study, governing the whole subject of chord structure.

Three Factors in Sound

The three qualities which characterize every sound vibration are: (1) Intensity, or loudness, (2) Number of vibrations per second, which determines its Pitch, or place in the ascending scale of notes, and (3) Overtones, by which the hearer distinguishes the violin from the piano, and the tenor voice from the bass, even when striking notes of identical pitch.

This last-named quality is one of the most elusive of musical problems, particularly in the field of sound reproduction. In attempting to capture and release a series of musical notes such as a vocal or instrumental selection, it always has been found more difficult to distinguish between various instruments than their loudness or pitch. Thus, a talking machine record of Beethoven's Fifth Symphony, while successful in reproducing the volume and pitch of the vibrations, may leave something to be desired in the matter of distinguishing the violin choirs from the flute section, or the violoncellos from the French horns.

Even this difficulty has been met, however, by the steady advances of musical science. Today the great physical and electrical laboratories of the world are applying themselves as never before to these questions, and only recently a series of brilliant investigations resulted in the invention of a new device for sound reproduction called the orthophonic talking machine which has succeeded in reproducing accurately all the necessary overtones, a feat never before accomplished. The basis of this discovery was an entirely new principle, called Matched Impedance.

A Long-Felt Need

By such advances the science and art of music progresses. Such achievements are to music what the development of printing was to literature—a means of disseminating on a far-flung scale, and for all time, the temporary and ephemeral accomplishments of man. Had these devices been in existence as long as printing, who knows what great geniuses of the instrument and the aria would have been preserved for our present-day pleasure and instruction? How many unnumbered virtuosos have lived and been forgotten in the past for the lack of a permanent recordation of their skill?

As the various means of playing music are developed, as more and more is known about the basic vibrations which constitute musical sound, there will be corresponding progress in the art of composing. These notes, or vibrations, will be gathered into new and untried combinations which were impossible with the old instruments, and the form of musical compositions will expand just as they did when orchestration superseded the more primitive instrumental arrangements of the Middle Ages.

PIES FROM CANS

THE great American pie might well be called our national dish, so universally popular is it. Men, particularly, like pies and many of them feel that a dinner is not really a dinner unless it is topped off with pie.

Many women, however, object to making it because of the labor involved and they hold out for more simple desserts against the irate protests of their husbands. It is not that the mixing of the dough is such a task, they point out, but the preparation of the pie filling requires much washing, peeling and coring of fruits.

There are thousands of wise housewives, however, who are effectively solving this problem by making use of canned products. This means that their pie filling is immediately available and that they are saved a great deal of tiresome labor. Practically the only work in connection with the pie is the mixing and rolling of the crust. It bakes while the housewife is doing other things about her kitchen and is ready to be eaten by the time the dessert course is due.

That is, of course, if you like hot berry or fruit pies. Or if you prefer, you can have squash, sweet potato, pumpkin or mince pies from your border of canned fruits.

Many good cooks also use canned milk for their custard pies and use it so successfully that it is impossible to distinguish pies made in this fashion from pies made from fresh milk. The following recipes have been tested and found delicious.

Cream Pie

One cup evaporated milk, 1 cup water, ½ cup sugar, 1-8 teaspoon salt, 3 eggs, 3 tablespoons flour, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 teaspoon vanilla extract. Dilute milk with water and bring to scalding point. Mix dry ingredients thoroughly together, add slightly beaten egg yolks and add gradually the scalded milk. Cook in a double boiler, until thickened, stirring constantly. Cool, add flavoring, fill baked crust, cover top with meringue made from stiffly beaten egg whites, and 4 tablespoons sugar. Brown slightly in a cool oven.

Date Custard Pie

Two cups reliquified powdered milk, 1 cup chopped dates, 2 eggs, 1 tablespoon sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt. Heat milk and dates. Beat eggs slightly and add sugar and salt. Add hot milk and dates and pour into pastry lined pan. Put into hot oven. After ten minutes reduce heat and bake twenty-five or thirty minutes longer or until custard is firm.

Cream Strawberry Pie

Drain canned strawberries, lay in an open crust and sprinkle with sugar. Fit on an upper crust. Put a pinch of soda in a gill of cream mixed with a gill of milk and put over the fire. Stir until scalding hot and thicken with two teaspoons of cornstarch, wet to a paste with a little cold milk. Add sugar to make the mixture sweet, take from the fire, and when cool, p. or the cream upon two egg whites whipped very stiff. Remove the upper crust from the baked and cool pie, pour this cream mixture over the berries, replace the crust, sprinkle with powdered sugar and serve.

Maraschino Pear Pie

Drain and chop 2 canned pears. Chop ½ cup maraschino cherries. Add ½ cup syrup from pears and 3 tablespoons of lemon juice and bring to the boiling point. Add ½ cup sugar mixed with 2 tablespoons flour. Cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Add 1 tablespoon butter and cool. Line a pie plate with pastry, put in the filling and lay narrow strips of pastry over the top. Bake in a hot oven for 25 minutes.

Colored Fur Used as Coat Trimming

Paris Designers Offer Mode—Ensemble Also Given Consideration.

A favorite method of trimming coats and one which has been adopted by leading Paris couturiers, observes a Paris fashion correspondent in the New York Herald-Tribune, is to have a band of flat fur down one side of the front which wraps over. This band starts from the collar and is often cut in one with it. It widens gradually until it reaches the hem, often acquiring the importance of an apron.

There is also the geometrically worked applique in diamonds, triangles or ovals that adorns the shaped hem of a godet coat. This may be in fur that is worked concentrically in the same color, but it is often shades. So far this is the only example of the patterned furs that were seen at the Paris Exposition de Arts Decoratifs. Most furriers and dressmakers prefer to use such expensive trimmings on the conservative lines to which they have been accustomed for years past, for women refuse to invest large sums in a garment which they cannot turn to some other use when they are tired of its shape or fashion.

This applies particularly to the use of colored furs. They have been used with great liberality by some of the dressmakers but the great furriers have left them severely alone. They hold that the cost of workmanship and the tradition of wear and usage which go with purchases bearing their name make this fashion, which can only be a passing fancy, unworthy of treatment by salons of long standing. Furthermore, it has already been adopted to a very wide extent by the less exclusive shops in Paris, where over-popularity means death to any fashion.

For winter many Paris salons favor the ensemble whose dress matches or harmonizes with the coat, rather than either the tailmade or separate wrap. There are, however, some notable exceptions. One is the delightful coat in corinthian red velvet. This coat is full length and is made with a narrow belt and groups of plaits on the hips which give the requisite fullness that is a characteristic of the Patou coats of the present season. There is a high collar and cuffs to match of sable-dyed squirrel.

A coat which Patou has made is of natural beige tweed with a small birdseye pattern and is lined throughout in ratgourdin with a shawl collar of beaver. Nothing could be cosier or more practical for traveling, and a coat of this kind is useful between seasons, for it is light in appearance while warm enough to replace the fur wrap which many women are reluctant to bring out until winter has actually arrived.

Girdle of Magenta and Petunia Colored Posies

A peasant's tunic was the inspiration for this quaint frock developed in royal velvet. The underskirt is of magenta crepe, and the same lovely color is used to form narrow bands on the collar and cuffs. The girdle of magenta and petunia colored flowers is worked in yarn.

Wearing the Green

Many women, if they follow fashions, will be dressed in green. The trend will not be confined to one shade; there are scores, such as lettuce, absinthe, larch, pea, sea, string bean, epluard, chartreuse, toulcan, myrtle, ivy, bottle, billard, reptile and a score of others.

To Hold Your Train

In some of the new evening cloaks there is a loop of georgette or velvet through which the train of the evening gown is pulled. Thus it is safely out of the way. So many of the new evening frocks have long sashes that drag on the floor, or odd trains of some sort, that this loop is truly useful.

Snakes Menace India

Snakes form the deadliest menace to the people of India, according to statistics recently issued here.

While the death roll attributed to the depredations of the large jungle beasts were only 3,000 last year, snakes were responsible for the deaths of nearly 20,000 people. Bengal tops the list of states, with 4,000 persons killed, while the Punjab had only seven of its inhabitants poisoned.

Bread Creates "Pep"

A great scientist tells the value of bread as food. In McCall's Magazine, Dr. E. V. McCullum, of the school of hygiene and health of Johns Hopkins university, announces:

"We eat for two distinct purposes. One is to keep the body healthy; the other to provide energy. We eat some foods primarily for their energy values. Bread is one of the latter foods."

—WE SAVE YOU MONEY—

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture. It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery. Will you let me help you select the memorial for your lot. Call at show room. NO AGENTS.

Cleveland.—Three men were held Monday charged with stabbing Edward Swilling, 25, and Mike Jopko, 24,
while they were conversing with Miss Myrtle Woodbridge. Both Swilling
and Jopko were near death today.

The stabbings occurred when Miss Woodbridge complained to Swilling and Jopko that the three men had made insulting remarks to her. A general fight followed. The men fled but were captured.

Cleveland.—A broken rail Monday
was held responsible for the wrecking of a Pennsylvania passenger train in Maple Heights last night, resulting in the injury of two persons, neither seriously. The train, enroute from Pittsburgh to Cleveland was traveling at a moderate speed when it struck the rail. The locomotive overturned and three baggage cars were derailed.

Cincinnati.—Overstudy was assigned Monday as the motive for the suicide of Mathilde E. Rehm, 26, graduate of Smith college, Northampton, Massachusetts, and a medical student at John Hopkins university, Baltimore who slashed her throat here Sunday.
Miss Rehm died before she could be given medical aid. She was spending a brief vacation at her home here.

PLAN MEMORIAL IN HILLS OF DAKOTA

May Carve Washington-Lincoln Statue on "Needles."

Rapid City, S. D.—A national shrine,
modeled from one of nature's vagaries,
and situated in the beautiful Black
hills of South Dakota, is the vision of Gutzon Borglum, the sculptor, and a group of South Dakota residents who
view the Black hills as the greatest undeveloped wonderland in the United States.

The shrine would be a monument of Washington and Lincoln. Standing side by side, their figures carved from
a huge needle-like piece of granite
which towers 200 feet above its immediate base.

Borglum has long held this vision.
He expects soon to visit South Dakota
to discuss details for raising the
$1,000,000 necessary to its completion.

Shaft Visible Many Miles.
In the Black hills there is a group
of rocks that rise perpendicularly as high as a fifteen or more story office building. The rocks are known as the Needles. One of these has withstood the elements more than its neighbors and there remains a wide
base from which there ascends a shaft
tapering almost to a point.

This shaft rises to a height greater than any elevation east of the Rockies
except Mount Harney, itself in the Black hills.

Situated among virtual mountains
of red, purple and gold, their slopes
dotted with towering pines, the proposed memorial rock may be seen for
miles before the long, slowly ascend-
ing trail finally brings the visitor
within its shadow.

Here Borglum found a setting for a national memorial.

Financial Backing in View.

With the advice of several South
Dakota residents, Borglum chose as
the characters for this memorial
Washington and Lincoln, two outstanding figures in American history, whom
he knew would appeal to the patriotism of every corner of the United States.

Information reaching supporters of the memorial in this state indicates
that the financial problem will be met.
Several wealthy persons have listened
sympathetically to the plan, and it is understood one New York multi-millionaire virtually has agreed to finance
the project single-handed.

Foreign Devils Lead Chinese to Ice Cream

Peking—For countless centuries it has been the custom of Chinese people to avoid any form of cold drinks,
even in the hottest weather.

With the advent of bobbed hair,
popular dances, jazz bands and other modern things, lead drinks are now in demand.

The Chinese have succumbed to the lure of ice cream. Cafes where ices
are sold have sprung into existence
everywhere and are doing a large business.

At street corners, where vendors formerly sold tea, are stands with ice cream freezers and mineral waters.

The cream is served in eggcups, and coolies and others swarm around the sellers, enjoying what in Chinese is termed "frozen delight."

BUCHANAN'S LOG CABIN TO BE SAVED

Birthplace of Former President to Be Memorial.

Chambersburg, Pa.—The weather-
worn log cabin in which James Buchanan, fifteenth President of the United States, was born on April 23,
1791, is to be restored and preserved
as a memorial to Pennsylvania's only President.

Built originally by the President's father in the mountains of southern Pennsylvania, the cabin was moved
nearly a century ago to Mercersburg,
where it has since stood, used much of the time as a tenant house. Now it is being torn down and moved again;
this time to Chambersburg, where it will be rebuilt on a lot near the center of the town.

The elder Buchanan was an Irishman who came to America soon after the Revolution, and set out to make a living as a trader among the Indians
and frontiersmen. Choosing a lonely
spot in the hills north of the Maryland border he built two log cabins,
one for a home and the other a store.
In time his place became known to the traders as "Stony Batter."

His trading operations proved so profitable that Buchanan finally moved
to Mercersburg and from there he sent
his son to school and later to college.
The younger man became a leader in
local affairs and represented his district in the state legislature and in congress. In 1856 he was elected President. He died in Lancaster in 1866, and was buried there.

In later years the President's sisters erected a stone pyramid at the site of his birthplace. This stands today, hidden in a grove of pine trees.

The oak logs of the old cabin are well preserved.

13,000 Ohio Girls Learn Dressmaking on Farms

Canton, Ohio.—The younger generation in rural Ohio ought to be especially well dressed this fall. Of the 24,595 boys and girls enrolled in the Four H clubs sponsored by county and state agricultural extension offices, more than half of them are girls learning how to make clothes.

About four out of every five club members are girls, the state club leaders at Ohio State university announce, so that clothing and food clubs lead in popularity. Clothing clubs have 13,869 members.

Ability to prepare and serve complete meals is required of older members of food clubs, totaling 5,058 enrollments.

Most popular of the boys' clubs is the pig club, with 2,140 boys enrolled.
Members of either grow a pig for market, grow a pure-bred gilt for breeding, or raise a sow and litter.

Serve 10 Alaska Points by Air From Rail Head

Fairbanks, Alaska.—With ten landing fields built or in construction in Alaska, airplane communication is promised between the interior terminus of the Alaska railroad here and most of the important mining sections and settlements in the territory.

Fairbanks is to be the center of all airplane trips into the interior. Southwest of Fairbanks three fields have been established. They are at Lake Minchumina, 125 miles from this city;
Tacotna, 250 miles, and Flat, 325 miles.

The Lake Minchumina field is intended mostly as for a refuge in storms which sweep across that section from Mount McKinley.

Construction has started on a field
at Ruby, 230 miles from Fairbanks.
An air route between Ruby and Ta-cotna measures 100 miles.

Went to the "Roots" of Patient's Trouble

Dr. S. G. Schaefer tells an amusing
story about the modern doctor's practice of extracting teeth as a cure for so many ailments.

"A man went into a clinic one day
and complained that he had lots of trouble biting his finger nails.

"Well, the medical staff in charge
did everything they could to find out
what was the cause of this pernicious
psychiatric phenomenon. They couldn't find the cause anywhere. As a last resort they looked at the man's teeth.
There was something suspicious about them. They pulled out a couple of them. Instantly the patient showed improvement! Encouraged by their success, they pulled them all out! Their patient pronounced himself completely cured and from that day to this he has never bitten his finger nails!"

Historian Changed Name

John Fiske, the American historical writer, was originally Edmund Fiske Green, but he had his name changed legally in 1855 to John Fiske, the name of one of his great-grandfathers. Fiske died in 1901.

List of Requisites Needed for Success

It is possible to codify the qualities that surely lead to success. Success has often been termed luck, chance, hard work, effort, application, etc., but we are now told that success is a science as truly as the science of health or the science of natural phenomena. And in line with this trend of modern thought to reduce success to certain rules fifty of the cardinal principles or laws are tabulated, obedience to which, it is held, are necessary to attain any degree of success in life as it is for us to obey the laws of nature to keep our bodies healthy.

These fifty cardinal principles are as follows:

Self-control, finding one's self, morality, health, will power, love or charity, knowledge of human nature, perseverance, ambition, development of inward richness and self-enjoyment, understanding, co-operation, optimism, self-reliance, rationality, common sense, honesty, loyalty, dependability, sincerity, love of the beautiful, naturalness, patience, right attitude toward life and work, altruism, industriousness, reverence for God and elders, ability to see ahead, contentment with nothing short of the best, economy, ability to think clearly and speak forcefully, discretion, ability to execute plans, fair play, broad-mindedness, courage, imagination, system, initiative, thoroughness, punctuality, personality, training, self-inventory, memory accuracy, truth to one's self, courtesy, determination.

No attempt is made to place these in the order of their relative importance with probably the exception of the first one, self-control.

Recalls Big Theft

The arrest of Romain Durignac in Paris recently for the theft of a pair of slippers worth perhaps half a dollar recalled the swindle he perpetrated with his sister, Therese Humbert, 23 years ago. On the strength of an alleged fabulous fortune left them in a locked safe, which was not to be opened until a certain date, the pair borrowed millions on millions of francs. They numbered among their victims politicians, diplomats and many of the leading figures of French society. Finally, the finger of suspicion pointed to them, and the authorities insisted that they open the safe, which was found to be empty. The brother and sister had fled, but they were captured in Spain, and the proceedings of their trial in Paris filled the French and foreign newspapers of the day.

Tunnies Worry Fishermen

Mediterranean tunnies have become common along the Norwegian coast, and are being exported by the thrifty Norwegian fishermen. The "hackerel giant," as it is called in Norway, is one of the strongest and swiftest fish known, and it may run to 1,000 pounds in weight. A comparatively small one recently netted off Grimsby, England, weighed 400 pounds. At Esbjerg, Denmark, a 600-pounder has been brought in. Attributing their presence to the warm summer, English fishermen say that large schools are roaming about the North sea, creating terror among other fish. Some think that the absence of herring shoals from their customary haunts is due to the presence of these hungry Mediterranean marauders.

Worth Borrowing

Here is a story about Dr. William Norman Guthrie, the well-known New York minister.

At a dinner party a minister from the West enthusiastically described the success of a charity sermon he had preached. Three and four figure subscriptions, he said, came in galore at the sermon's end. The collection plate was massed high with banknotes of large denomination and some ladies even went so far as to turn in jeweled bracelets, rings and watches.

The silence was impressive when the western minister finished. Then Doctor Guthrie leaned across the table toward him and said:

"My dear sir, could you lend me that sermon?"

Boost for Johnson's

The story about a certain pill manufacturer working the name of his product into the hymn, "Hark the herald angels sing," may or may not be true; but the following actually appeared in a church paper:

"Why I attend prayer meeting. To me the prayer meeting is an excellent carbon remover for the heart, and as Johnson's Carbon Remover is for our machines, so is Glendale Presbyterian Prayer Meeting for me.—Mary R. Milton."

"Black Glass" Enables Photograph in Darkness

Tokyo.—After several years' investigation, Jusei Sugiyu, a scientist of the experimental station of Osaka, is reported to have invented a black glass of special kind which is expected to prove of great military value. It is said the glass is opaque to all but ultraviolet rays, and by its use, battle formations or the movements of an enemy can be easily photographed in darkness without detection. Moving pictures, it is claimed, can also be taken in the dark by its use.

Experiments with the new glass made recently in the presence of Rear Admiral Muto are said to have proved a complete success.

The inventor declares the glass will be found valuable in medical treatment.

Use Old Well to Cool City's Drinking Fountain

Decatur, Ark.—The old oaken bucket, with its iron-bound staves of the days prior to the discovery of germs, has become an outlaw, but the old town well that went with it here and which did valiant service in the pre-germ days is being harnessed to the necessities of modernity.

The town well is to be used as a cooler for a modern, sanitary drinking fountain. Pipes from the town water works are being laid to the well, and a coil reaching to the bottom is to be placed inside the shaft and under the water. Water from the waterworks will run through the pipe and thence to a drinking fountain on the busiest corner in the town.

AMUSEMENTS

It is doubtful if any newspaper story has ever been brought to the screen with such a vivid and true-to-life background as that which enhances "Headlines," the new Encore drama with Alice Joyce, Malcolm McGregor and Virginia Lee Corbin playing the leading roles. It is said that newspaper men with long training in this profession saw to it that the back grounds and characters really represented the great newspaper profession.

E. H. Griffith, the director, was a former newspaper man. Mr. Griffith went to the offices of the New York World for many big scenes. Bayard Swope, managing editor of the World gave him much assistance, Raymond Harris, a former San Francisco newspaper man wrote the titles and was assisted by Herbert Roemer, another newspaper man. Peter Milne and Arthur Hoerl, who wrote the scenario were both newspaper men at one time. Some of the players have also had newspaper experience.

In this sterling story, the cub reporter does not dash hither and you and finally scoop the world and win the daughter of the managing editor; the reporters do not tote huge notebooks around and write like mad-fire when some one talks; the city editor isn't quite as hard as nails and the sob writer has some of the weaknesses that befall the people about whom she writes.

Alice Joyce has the leading role in this drama and she is capably assisted by Virginia Lee Corbin and Malcolm McGregor, as well as other leading players.

Discourage Rats Around the Farm

Rodent Is Robber and Pilferer and Lives Off of Various Products.

One of the pests with which the average farmer has to contend is the rat. He is by nature a robber and a pilferer, living on the products of the farm, and giving no return. The United States government says that this boarder who pays no board destroys more than $200,000,000 worth of crops every year. In addition to this money loss he is known as an active agent in the spreading of disease. This loss and the danger of spreading disease to stock and members of the family can be successfully and completely eliminated by the use of concrete in floors, basements and foundations of farm buildings. The rat's one impassable barrier is concrete floors and walls. These will stop him and effectually cut off his food supply. When this is accomplished Mr. Rat will hunt a more fertile plundering ground.

Rat Menace Lessened.

Where farm buildings are constructed of concrete the menace of the rat is materially lessened. If buildings are constructed with concrete floors, lower parts of walls, and especially concrete foundations, there are no pockets in which the rats can hide or make their homes. If the use of concrete is extended to the construction of the feeding floors the rat menace has been absolutely eliminated.

A concrete silo is ratproof because the rat cannot gnaw through its walls or get at the silage in any other way. The same is true of a concrete corn crib which is the favorite feeding place of rats. Thus the corn is saved for the stock or market. In a concrete poultry house the poultry are free from the danger of attack by rats. This will develop a feeling of security on the part of the hens, which will manifest itself in the greater number of eggs produced. With concrete floors and walls the entire place can easily be swept and kept clear of all accumulations under which an occasional rat might hide.

Rats Kept Out.

In a concrete granary there will be no rats to consume or destroy what the farmer has stored for his own use. The rat cannot gnaw through the floor or get in in any way excepting through the door. A concrete feeding floor or barnyard pavement prevents the rats from consuming the grain and feed distributed to the live stock.

Concrete should be used in the construction of farm buildings as far as possible. It certainly should be used in all foundations, floors and lower parts of walls of larger buildings. Smaller buildings should be entirely built of it. Concrete construction is ratproof. It conserves stock, grains, feeds and supplies. It saves poultry. It protects your family against diseases spread by the rat.

Plowing Deep in Garden

Will Give Best Results

"Plow deep while sluggards sleep" is as true today as it was a hundred and fifty years ago, but it is a slogan which is not as frequently acted upon as it should be in gardens. It is said that in European gardens which are spaded, the garden is often worked two or even three spits deep, a "spit" being the depth to which a spade can be driven. Now this depth may not be necessary but a garden plowed or spaded ten inches deep will give enough better results than six-inch plowing to make the work well worth while.

At the same time the gardener should remember that in any work of this kind, increasing the depth of plowing must be done gradually. If the garden or field has been plowed only six and one-half inches deep, better increase the depth of plowing by a half inch or an inch each year, rather than increasing the whole depth all at once. Too much of the subsoil must not be brought to the surface at one time. As you turn the soil, bringing up an inch or so of new subsoil, mix the ground thoroughly with the new subsoil, and if possible with manure or compost. In the fall you will be able to get one inch in this way and then in the spring you can get a little more, and the following fall you can go down another inch if you choose.

"Well begun, half done," is so true in the garden that it is hard to pay too much attention to the plowing.

For That Rainy Day

I do not know of a method whereby returns from farming can be made uniform year after year. But I do know that it is possible for farmers to lay aside in years of good profits reserves upon which they can draw in years that are not so good. I can not help but feel that too many farmers have reinvested their surplus earnings in high-priced land when they should have kept at least a part of them in more liquid reserves upon which they could readily draw in times of depression.—Secretary Jardine.

Don't Crowd Chickens

Avoid filling the chicken house beyond its capacity with chickens. Each bird ought to have at least eight inches of space on the roost. There should be one open nest to every eight hens or where trapnests are used, one nest will accommodate four hens if the nests are visited every two hours.

“EQUINOCTIAL STORMS” MYTH
Have No Standing in Meteorology, Says Weather Bureau Expert.
Washington.—This is the storm time of the year, but there are no such things as “equinoctial storms.” They are a myth and have no standing in meteorology, according to a statement by the American Nature association. This will shock thousands who have carried from school days some hazy information about “equinoctial storms,” such as caught the Shenandoah. They are line squalls.
“There is no maximum of storm frequency according to statistics, either in this country or in Europe, close to the date of either equinox,” according to the American Nature association, which publishes an extended statement on the point in Nature magazine, by C. F. Talman of the United States weather bureau. “Of course in the long run many storms do occur about these dates, just as they occur at all other times,” the writer points out, “but there is no scientific reason for supposing their occurrence can be connected in any way with the sun’s passage over what the schoolboy described as a ‘menagerie lion running around the earth.’”
Looked for in Autumn.
An “equinoctial” is looked for in the United States particularly in the autumn. The autumnal equinox occurs during the season of West India hurricanes, and it occasionally happens that storms of this character sweep up our eastern seaboard within a week or two of the date in question, extending their influence far inland. These events have probably helped to foster the widespread belief in an autumnal equinoctial storm.
“The Shenandoah was caught in a line squall,” the statement continues. “A balloon or airplane would not have been exposed to similar strain and would probably have weathered the gale.”
“In fact, part of the wrecked airship, containing some of the gasbags, was wafted to earth 12 miles from the scene of the disaster, carrying several members of the crew to a safe landing.”
“The squall that caused this tragedy of the air takes its place in the catalogue of historic storms. It brought to general knowledge the fact, previously little realized except by weather men and airmen, that storms can wreak their fury by blowing vertically as well as horizontally. It also naturalized the term ‘line-squall’ in the popular vocabulary.”
“Violent upward and downward movements of the air prevail in all squalls and thunderstorms. This fact has been known for many years, but it has only recently assumed practical importance. Formerly only the birds and occasional balloonists were whirled aloft or dashed downward by vertical gales, but today such gales threaten the lives of an army of aeroplants.”
“Squalls, like tornadoes, are of such brief duration and generally of such limited area that they defy prediction by means of the ordinary machinery of weather forecasting.”
“As to storms, the ‘Big Wind of Ireland,’ January 6-7, 1839, according to contemporary newspaper accounts, was one of the great weather disasters of modern times.”
“The ‘Great Storm’ of 1703 is supposed to have been the most severe tempest that ever visited the British Isles. It cost the lives of more than 8,000 seamen, including some 1,500 men of the royal navy.”
“The Barbados hurricane of 1780 was probably the most destructive hurricane that has occurred in the West Indies.”
“Saxby’s gale swept over eastern Canada with terrific force October 4, 1839. It owes its name to the fact that it was predicted by a Lieutenant Saxby of the British navy.”
Historic Storms.
“In the Backergunge cyclone, October, 1876, more than 100,000 people were drowned by the storm waves over the Ganges delta.”
“The blizzard of March 11-14, 1888, also known as the ‘great March blizzard,’ ‘the New York blizzard,’ and in New Hampshire, as the ‘town-meeting storm,’ is historic.”
“The Samoa hurricane of March 16, 1889, wrecked American and German warships in the harbor of Apia, with heavy loss of life.”
“The St. Louis tornado of May 27, 1896, was the most destructive of the three tornadoes that have occurred in large American cities, the others being the Louisville tornado of 1890 and the Omaha tornado of 1913.”
“The Portland storm of November 26-27, 1898, is the classic example of the danger of ignoring storm signals. The steamer Portland, which furnished the object lesson in this case, was one of more than 140 vessels wrecked by the storm on the New England coast.”
“In the Galveston hurricane, September 8, 1900, there was great loss of life and property. This was mainly the work of water rather than wind. A less destructive Galveston hurricane occurred August 16-17, 1915.”

QUALITY AND PALATABILITY IN MEAT SUBJECT OF STUDY
Experimental Work to Be Conducted in Twenty-Nine State Agricultural Experiment Stations.
Chicago.—Plans of procedure for a national study to determine the factors responsible for quality and palatability in meat have been definitely mapped out by a special committee of five live stock and meat specialists headed by Dean F. B. Mumford of the college of agriculture, University of Missouri. Membership of this committee, which was appointed by the American Society of Animal Production, includes E. W. Sheets, chief of the animal husbandry division, bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture, secretary; Prof. M. D. Helsler, chief in meat investigation, Iowa agricultural experiment station; Prof. H. J. Gramlich, animal husbandman, Nebraska agricultural experiment station, and Dr.

Dean F. B. Mumford.

C. Robert Moulton, director of the department of nutrition, Institute of American Meat Packers. The experimental work decided upon by the committee will be carried out by 29 state agricultural experiment stations. It will include experiments on feeding, breeding, methods of slaughtering, methods of cooking and other phases of the subject.
The study is sponsored by the National Live Stock and Meat board, an organization interested in extensive research and education regarding meat. Experimental stations co-operating with the board are Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana, Maryland, Minnesota, New Mexico, New Jersey, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oregon, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, South Dakota, Missouri, Mississippi, Montana, Nebraska, Texas, Virginia, West Virginia, Wisconsin, Wyoming and New Hampshire.

Head Hunting in Luzon Replaced by Tame Games
New York.—“I was surprised and somewhat disappointed to learn when I reached the Philippines that head-hunting tribes had given up their ancient pastime under persuasion of American officials,” declared Alvin Coombe, who recently has been around the world with his family.
“While I didn’t get the thrill I expected, my curiosity brought me one of the most interesting bits of information I picked up during the entire trip.”
“An army officer, who had held some administrative job in the northern part of Luzon island, where head-hunting had its greatest vogue, told me they had changed their habits by teaching them American sports.”
“A successful collector of skulls enjoyed the same prestige in his community as a successful collector of home runs on an American baseball team.”
“It was sound reasoning, and I think it could be applied in other parts of the world where half-civilized peoples who have no sports amuse themselves and reveal the competitive spirit in feuds and prolonged murder tournaments.”
“I think the most attractive part of the new school of recreation to the savage is the gallery his games attract. When he hunted heads he hunted alone. He gets more kicks from the cheers of the spectators at the games than from the deferred praise for a successful head hunt.”

Heat with Distinction

At last it is proved that a home heater can be good looking—ornamental, if you will—as well as a practical heat-producing utility.

The Mueller Furnacette marks the greatest advance in home heating equipment since the invention of the heating stove. It is the joint creation of master furniture designers and skilled heating engineers. There is distinction in every line of its well-balanced, walnut-grained, vitreous enamel cabinet.

And as for heat—never was there an above-floor heater of any kind that could compare with the Furnacette in heating efficiency! It heats the whole house by continuously re-circulating warm, moist air thru all the rooms. It provides more comfortable, more uniform heat than two or three stoves combined, yet uses no more fuel than an ordinary heating stove.

Sold on convenient monthly payments.

BASKETBALL SEASON OPENS THANKSGIVING

Monte Beavers Will Bring His Newark Team to The C. A. C. Thursday.

With a "Monte Beaver" coached team from the Newark Y. M. C. A. as their opponents the C. A. C. basketball boys will get under way Thanksgiving night.

The club has been fortunate in that they have in their line-up this year the entire personnel of last year's team. That team of young bloods whom contributed so much to the already excellent reputation of the club's basketball players. Added to this personnel is some new material. Not exactly new to the community but to the representatives of the club. 'All of whom have made a name for themselves not only in high school athletics but also in independent athletics, namely Dwight Steele, Orville Smith and Eph Merriman. With these three men added to the already strong team of last season fans are sure of a bang-up outfit in Circleville this season and one that will be hard to beat.

"Monte" tells us he is bringing to Circleville this year the best team ever. The club boys say they are from Missouri and have been practicing hard and consistently for the past two months to fit themselves to prove to "Monte" that he is in error, therefore local fans are sure of some real thrills when they come down to the gym Thanksgiving night to see the curtain raiser of the 1925-26 basketball season.

Sphinx Gets Backache in Her, or His, Old Age

Cairo.—The celebrated sphinx of Giza, who, historians believe, is between 5,000 and 6,000 years old, is having trouble with her (or his) back in her (or his) old age.

The back of the giant figure, which has withstood the wear of several millenniums, is showing signs of cracking, and the antiquities department of the Egyptian government is taking measures to strengthen it. The department is also clearing away the desert sands, which are constantly encroaching on the famous monument and already cover a part of it.

WATCH ECLIPSE IN INDIAN SEA

Scientists Plan to Make Observations in Sumatra.

Washington.—An eight months' trip half way around the world for two minutes of actual work will be the experience of a party from the naval observatory that has left to observe the total eclipse of the sun in January, 1926, at Sumatra in the Dutch East Indies.

British, German and French parties also will be at Sumatra, as well as a party from Swarthmore college. The Italians will have an observation party in eastern Africa.

The American naval group will endeavor to observe phenomena in connection with the upward curve of the sunspot cycle, and will study the sun's corona as well. Motion pictures and color plates of the eclipse will be made.

Special attention will be given to the sun's gases, which scientists say extend as far as 2,000,000 miles from the sun's rim when the moon blots out its face.

The party will travel on the naval minesweeper Bittern from Manila to Sumatra. It expects to reach its destination in October, and the three months' interim before the eclipse occurs on January 14—visible only from Africa to the Indian ocean—will be passed in erecting and housing a telescope tower.

Lieut. Henry C. Kellers, a naval doctor, has been detailed to the expedition at the request of the Smithsonian Institution, to collect specimens of birds, mammals and insects. The others in the party are Capt. Frank P. Littell, professor of mathematics; George H. Peters, associate astronomer; G. M. Raynsford, junior astronomer, and Dr. John A. Anderson of Mount Wilson observatory, Pasadena, Cal., physicist.

Trapper Takes Flivver

Into Haunts of Eskimo

Herb Lake, Man.—Far to the north of here, a small automobile chugs its way over the ice and snow, the first vehicle of its kind to invade the land of the Eskimo.

It was taken into the far north by John Harris, who has returned to his home there after marketing a large number of furs here.

On his visit to civilization, Harris brought his Eskimo wife and three children, "just to give them a treat," and if wide and wondering eyes were a criterion, it was a treat for them.

When he returned, he took with him the small automobile, besides a large stock of provisions and goods, to be used in trading with the natives. So far as is known here, it will be the first automobile in this section of the north.

Harris also took a power boat built in sections, and when he left the rail head, he planned to put the boat together, transfer the automobile engine to the boat, and proceed under that power as far as possible.

Harris said he would have no trouble running the automobile over the hard packed snow as he made his rounds in trading with the Eskimos.

Planes Find Runaways

The planes scanned every launch in the bay until at last they sighted the fugitives. Then they signaled their discovery to the officers on shore and the prisoners were recaptured.

Rail Office Court

Once Rich Woman Works to Keep Child

Boston.—Facts pertaining to "the mysterious disappearance" of Harold Lawton, scion of a prominent family and son of the late Superior Court Judge George F. Lawton were made public by Walter I. Badger, counsel for the seventeen-year-old daughter, Laura, who is objecting to the probate of the will of her grandfather which cut her off from the $75,000 estate with the sum of $500.

A school teacher, Gladys Dunbar, was partly the cause of Lawton's desertion of his wife and child six years ago, the counsel stated. As a result of the desertion, Mrs. Harold Lawton, receiving no aid from her husband's people, was obliged to give up her cultured home in Winchester and go out and work as a domestic in order that she might keep her little girl with her.

Both sides have announced their intention to fight to the last straw over the will. The father of the little seventeen-year old girl whose desertion caused untold suffering to her and her mother, is believed to be dead and therefore, her counsel states, she is entitled to her share in grandfather's estate.

IS LEWIS' SUGGESTION TO THE NATION'S CHIEFTAIN

Threat of Action By Union Is Uttered As Alternative of Failure On Uncle Sam's Part—Agreements Violated By Producing Interests Is Charged—Fruits of Contract Lauded.

President Coolidge has been asked by the United Mine Workers whether the government desires to intervene to maintain the integrity of the Jacksonville soft coal wage agreement and, if not, whether the union men would be justified in taking their own measures to enforce it.

The inquiry was made in a letter from John Lewis, head of the miners' organization, dated November 21. Lewis stated that the three year agreement expiring March 31, 1927, was reached with the co-operation of the departments of justice, commerce and labor and added that the annual report of the secretary of commerce referred to the compact as insuring industrial peace in the industry and that no better example of cooperation to secure the elimination of national waste could be presented.

Lewis asserted that "substantial coal producing interests' signatories to the arrangement, have violated and repudiated their written word of honor and in so doing have impaired the integrity of the wage structure throughout the entire bituminous industry."

Naming the Pittsburgh Coal Co., Consolidation Coal Co., the Bethlehem Mines Corporation and the coal interests of the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh railroad as among those he alleges have dishonored their wage agreements, Lewis asserted that their "savage and dishonest acts" have added to the burden of those honest coal operators who desire in every particular to operate in accordance with their wage agreement.

Among other things the letter said: "The federal government upon occasion and from time to time, has intervened in the coal industry. Not alone the operators but the miners have felt the weight of its influence and regulated their policies accordingly. In all respect the mine workers now inquire whether the federal government desires to intervene to maintain the morality and integrity of the existing agreement in the bituminous coal industry."

"If it should occur that the federal government is disposed not to intervene for the protection of a meritorious wage agreement, might the mine workers believe their own efforts in that direction may be considered as being justified?"

Lewis declined to discuss his letter. When asked for an explanation of the last paragraph, in which he asked the president whether the mine workers would be justified in taking their own measures to enforce the Jacksonville agreement should the government not feel disposed to intervene, the miners' leader said:

"Let the letter speak for itself. I have nothing further to say at this time."

This is the second reference to the federal government of the soft coal wage scale troubles, but in the former case, Secretaries Davis of the labor department and Hoover of the commerce department were named, and no action resulted.

At that time, cabinet members said that it was not the duty of the executive to enforce any civil contract, that naturally, the administration stood for the keeping of wage agreements by all concerned. John L. Lewis, president of the miners' union, in public addresses, declared that large corporations were breaking the scale and that serious trouble would ensue if matters were not corrected.

The Jacksonville wage agreement, which covered all the union coal fields was drawn up in 1924 to run for three years and incorporated a scale of wages which was first laid down by a federal commission after the coal strike of 1919.

Non-union fields, located chiefly in Pennsylvania and territory south of the Ohio river continued to operate on a lower wage rate. After many months of part time or no operation during the last year, a number of former union coal miners began working again, but set aside the union scale for a lower one. The miners' union has strike activity aimed at all of these operations and a number of legal proceedings have been instituted in northern West Virginia concerning the strikes.

POMONA GRANGE MEETING WITH SCIOTO VALLEY

Good Program Was Rendered --Next Session Will be With Nebraska in 1926.

The last session of the Pickaway Pomona grange for 1925 was held last Saturday at the Scioto Valley grange hall, three miles north of Ashville, a very good attendance, the hall being filled to capacity at the afternoon session.

At the forenoon session the regular business was taken up with very good reports coming in from the various subordinate granges of the county in regard to work done during the past quarter.

The question of requiring motor vehicles to stop when school busses are taking on or discharging passengers was taken up and discussed at some length, after which it was referred to a committee for further consideration.

After being served a fine dinner by the ladies of Scioto Valley grange, the afternoon session opened with acceptance of an invitation from Nebraska grange to meet with them in February, 1926, and a class of five candidates was given the obligation of the fifth degree.

Following the completion of business, the following program was rendered under direction of the lecturer:

LEAPED FROM AUTOMOBILE AND KILLED

Mrs. Myrtle Smith Accused of Alienating Affections of Husband of Driver.

Columbus, O., Nov. 23, (UP).—Mrs. Myrtle Smith, 26, was killed here last night when she leaped from an automobile driven by Mrs. George L. Parrish, who had accused Mrs. Smith of alienating her husband's affections.

Mrs. Parrish, in a statement to police, said she had remonstrated with her husband and Mrs. Smith but both persisted in their relations. Last night they were driving about, Mrs. Parrish said she plead with Mrs. Smith to forsake Parrish.

"Mrs. Smith refused," Mrs. Parrish told detectives, "and leaped from the automobile when I told her I would take her to the police station."

As Mrs. Smith jumped an automobile driven by A. E. Poston passed over her body.

Interesting Session With Mrs. Jane Pherson--Report of State Convention.

November 18, the Darbyville W. C. T. U., met with Mrs. Jane Pherson and daughter, Mrs. Jennie Reeves. It was a beautiful day and the ladies of the Union and several visitors, members of the Williamsport Union, came. The devotions were led by vice president, Gladys Carpenter. Reading 3d Psalm, and everyone joined in singing. After the report of the Flower mission and other business, Mrs. Wilda Carpenter gave a report of the state convention at Akron, October 20 to 23. Akron's mayor gave us a real welcome and said he loved the white ribbon and for what it stood. He was the son of a white ribbon mother. The president of the Council of Churches gave us a hearty welcome and he, too, was the son of a white ribboner.

Mrs. Case welcomed us for the Federation of clubs. Another delightful welcome was from the pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church in which we met. He thinks every Christian should be a temperance worker and teach law observance and the glory of living in the country that has outlawed the liquor traffic. He too, was the son of a white ribbon saint.

A rousing welcome was given by the superintendent of schools of Akron a city of 215,000 people. He believes in the Bible being read in the public schools. The school board of Akron, appropriated $15,000 to teach foreign mothers in the homes a little of English, about Old Glory, and how to care for the home and babies. These foreign mothers need a little English very much; many times they learn very fast, are young and anxious to learn. Superintendent McCord said he too had pillowed his head on the white ribbon in childhood.

So many departments are to be learned about. Each delegate attends the conference in which she is most interested and this is hard to tell sometimes, because we want to learn about different ones.

The state superintendent of S. T. I. found many wanting more information about essay work in schools. 20380 essays were written in Ohio the past year. Let it be 40,000 this year. The first national prize essay was written by Thomas White, of Defiance college. One state prize was won by a Pickaway pupil, Violet Ginder, of Darbyville high school. It was a good convention with fine speakers; Judge Florence Allen and Congressman Cooper made good speeches and several others. There were 601 delegates.

SOCIAL CALENDAR

A delightful birthday party was given Saturday evening, November 21 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. McClelland Clark, of this city, in honor of Mr. Clark's 35th birthday anniversary. Mr. Clark received many beautiful and useful presents. The guests departed wishing him many more happy anniversaries.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Reese, of Oak street, Columbus, entertained the following guests to a Thanksgiving dinner last Sunday:

People like to be kept guessing. Curiosity, the love of the mysterious and baffling in our natures, the desire for thrills, have made the mystery play a fixed part of the playgoer's rations. Human nature is pretty much the same and the trend of plays has been such, since the medieval "miracle plays" that the present day mystery play occupies a very secure place on the stage.

"Spooks," the mystery thriller coming to the Hartman theater, Columbus, for the week of November 23, is a different type of mystery play from "The Bat," "The Cat and the Canary" and "The Gorilla" in that it plays up the "spooky" elements and the traditional manifestations of the unseen world, rather than killings.

"Spooks" comes to Columbus after long and successful runs in New York at the Cort theater and in Chicago at the Playhouse.

Coates Gwynne heads a talented New York cast, composed of Ethel Tole, Dixie Loftin, Ruby Blackburn, Carl Way, Cliff Clifford, Alma Blondo Robert LaLonde, Arthur Olmi, Alfred Atwell and John J. Schwarz.

A delectable detective puzzle will be served, enlivened by some new tricks, with some amusing banter, references to radio and a love climax to make the whole thing a savory dish to set before playgoers.

Matinee on Thanksgiving day and Saturday. Mail orders will be given prompt attention.

WHAT IS MUSIC ?

Tremendous Strides in Science of Acoustics Open New Vistas to Art of Musical Expression.

What is music? It is surprising how few people can give a coherent answer to this question.

Yet in a way it is not remarkable, for music embodies far more than the simple physical elements of which it is composed.

The dictionary says: "Music is the science and art of the rhythmic combination of tones, vocal or instrumental, embracing melody and harmony for the expression of anything possible by this means, but chiefly anything emotional." That, perhaps, is as good a general definition as one can hope to formulate. But even that leaves much unsaid.

The truth is that so many radical changes are being made constantly in the composition and reproduction of music, that our ideas about it are forced to change with them. There was a day, in the dim beginnings of recorded time, when primitive forest dwellers regarded the harsh monotonic screechings of their bone flutes and the thumpings of their crude drums as music of the highest order.

Today we have our highly organized sonatas and symphonic poems rendered by great orchestras containing scores of varieties of instruments, and not only produced but reproduced any number of times by the talking machine, or spread instantaneously over the face of the globe by the radio.

The Dawn of Music

The first music undoubtedly was the modulation of the human voice in song. In the beginning man found that he could get more out of his vocal cords than the guttural grunts which constituted his primitive mode of speech. He discovered that he could produce sounds both higher and lower than those used in the accustomed intercourse of the spoken word. Charmed with the novel and not unpleasant effect, he experimented in various arrangements and combinations of these new notes. This simple melody, echoing in some smoky cavern, was the first music.

The invention of the various musical instruments followed at a much later date. Tradition has it that the lyre, or harp, was discovered by the vibration of the wind in the dried membranes stretched across the shell of a dead tortoise. The development of the flute and other wind instruments is supposed to have originated in the sound made by the river breeze blowing across hollow reeds on the water's edge.

Many centuries passed before man began to apply rational thought to music. Slowly it was organized into a science. Learned men studied it and found that sound is due to vibrations which travel through the air and enter the ear. It was found that these sound vibrations have three distinct qualities, and that every sound has its own individual combination of these three qualities. Moreover it was discovered that these vibrations may be combined together according to mathematical rule, producing what is known as Harmony. Later Harmony became so ramified and complex that it is now regarded as a separate study, governing the whole subject of chord structure.

Three Factors in Sound

The three qualities which characterize every sound vibration are: (1) Intensity, or loudness, (2) Number of vibrations per second, which determines its Pitch, or place in the ascending scale of notes, and (3) Overtone, by which the hearer distinguishes the violin from the piano, and the tenor voice from the bass, even when striking notes of identical pitch.

This last-named quality is one of the most elusive of musical problems, particularly in the field of sound reproduction. In attempting to capture and release a series of musical notes such as a vocal or instrumental selection, it always has been found more difficult to distinguish between various instruments than their loudness or pitch. Thus, a talking machine record of Beethoven's Fifth Symphony, while successful in reproducing the volume and pitch of the vibrations, may leave something to be desired in the matter of distinguishing the violin choirs from the flute section, or the violoncellos from the French horns.

Even this difficulty has been met, however, by the steady advances of musical science. Today the great physical and electrical laboratories of the world are applying themselves as never before to these questions, and only recently a series of brilliant investigations resulted in the invention of a new device for sound reproduction called the orthophonic talking machine which has succeeded in reproducing accurately all the necessary overtones, a feat never before accomplished. The basis of this discovery was an entirely new principle, called Matched Impedance.

A Long-Felt Need

By such advances the science and art of music progresses. Such achievements are to music what the development of printing was to literature—a means of disseminating on a far-flung scale, and for all time, the temporary and ephemeral accomplishments of man. Had these devices been in existence as long as printing, who knows what great geniuses of the instrument and the aria would have been preserved for our present-day pleasure and instruction? How many unnumbered virtuosi have lived and been forgotten in the past for the lack of a permanent recordation of their skill?

As the various means of playing music are developed, as more and more is known about the basic vibrations which constitute musical sound, there will be corresponding progress in the art of composing. These notes, or vibrations, will be gathered into new and untried combinations which were impossible with the old instruments, and the form of musical compositions will expand just as they did when orchestrations superseded the more primitive instrumental arrangements of the Middle Ages.

PIES FROM CANS

THE great American pie might well be called our national dish, so universally popular is it. Men, particularly, like pies and many of them feel that a dinner is not really a dinner unless it is topped off with pie.

Many women, however, object to making it because of the labor involved and they hold out for more simple desserts against the irate protests of their husbands. It is not that the mixing of the dough is such a task, they point out, but the preparation of the pie filling requires much washing, peeling and coring of fruits.

There are thousands of wise housewives, however, who are effectively solving this problem by making use of canned products. This means that their pie filling is immediately available and that they are saved a great deal of tiresome labor. Practically the only work in connection with the pie is the mixing and rolling of the crust. It takes while the housewife is doing other things about her kitchen and is ready to be eaten by the time the dessert course is due.

That is, of course, if you like hot berry or fruit pies. Or if you prefer, you can have squash, sweet potato, pumpkin or mince pies from your border of canned fruits.

Many good cooks also like to use milk for their custard pies and use it so successfully that it is impossible to distinguish pies made in this fashion from pies made from fresh milk. The following recipes have been tested and found delicious.

Cream Pie

One cup evaporated milk, 1 cup water, 1/2 cup sugar, 1-8 teaspoon salt, 3 eggs, 3 tablespoons flour, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 teaspoon vanilla extract. Dilute milk with water and bring to scalding point. Mix dry ingredients thoroughly together, add slightly beaten egg yolks and add gradually the scalded milk. Cook in a double boiler, until thickened, stirring constantly. Cool, add flavoring, fill baked crust, cover top with meringue made from stiffly beaten egg whites, and 4 tablespoons sugar. Brown slightly in a cool oven.

Date Custard Pie

Two cups reliquified powdered milk, 1 cup chopped dates, 2 eggs, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1/4 teaspoon salt. Heat milk and dates. Beat eggs slightly and add sugar and salt. Add hot milk and dates and pour into pastry lined pan. Put into hot oven. After ten minutes reduce heat and bake twenty-five or thirty minutes longer or until custard is firm.

Cream Strawberry Pie

Drain canned strawberries, lay in an open crust and sprinkle with sugar. Fit on an upper crust. Put a pinch of soda in a gill of cream mixed with a gill of milk and put over the fire. Stir until scalding hot and thicken with two teaspoons of cornstarch, wet to a paste with a little cold milk. Add sugar to make the mixture sweet, take from the fire, and when cool, pour the cream upon two egg whites whipped very stiff. Remove the upper crust from the baked and cool pie, pour this cream mixture over the berries, replace the crust, sprinkle with powdered sugar and serve.

Maraschino Pear Pie

Drain and chop 2 canned pears. Chop 1/2 cup maraschino cherries. Add 1/2 cup syrup from pears and 3 tablespoons of lemon juice and bring to the boiling point. Add 1/2 cup sugar mixed with 2 tablespoons flour. Cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Add 1 tablespoon butter and cool. Line a pie plate with pastry, put in the filling and lay narrow strips of pastry over the top. Bake in a hot oven for 25 minutes.

THOUGHTFUL GIFTS

Colored Fur Used as Coat Trimming

Paris Designers Offer Mode—Ensemble Also Given Consideration.

A favorite method of trimming coats and one which has been adopted by leading Paris couturiers, observes a Paris fashion correspondent in the New York Herald-Tribune, is to have a band of flat fur down one side of the front which wraps over. This band starts from the collar and is often cut in one with it. It widens gradually until it reaches the hem, often acquiring the importance of an apron.

There is also the geometrically worked applique in diamonds, triangles or ovals that adorns the shaped hem of a gilet coat. This may be in fur that is worked concentrically in the same color, but it is often shades. So far this is the only example of the patterned furs that were seen at the Paris Exposition de Arts Decoratifs. Most furriers and dressmakers prefer to use such expensive trimmings on the conservative lines to which they have been accustomed for years past, for women refuse to invest large sums in a garment which they cannot turn to some other use when they are tired of its shape or fashion.

This applies particularly to the use of colored furs. They have been used with great liberality by some of the dressmakers but the great furriers have left them severely alone. They hold that the cost of workmanship and the tradition of wear and usage which go with purchases bearing their name make this fashion, which can only be a passing fancy, unworthy of treatment by salons of long standing. Furthermore, it has already been adopted to a very wide extent by the less exclusive shops in Paris, where over-popularity means death to any fashion.

For winter many Paris salons favor the ensemble whose dress matches or harmonizes with the coat, rather than either the tailored or separate wrap. There are, however, some notable exceptions. One is the delightful coat in corinthian red velvet. This coat is full length and is made with a narrow belt and groups of plaits on the hips which give the requisite fullness that is a characteristic of the Patou coats of the present season. There is a high collar and cuffs to match of sable-dyed squirrel.

A coat which Patou has made is of natural beige tweed with a small birdseye pattern and is lined throughout in ratgourdin with a shawl collar of beaver. Nothing could be cosier or more practical for traveling, and a coat of this kind is useful between seasons, for it is light in appearance while warm enough to replace the fur wrap which many women are reluctant to bring out until winter has actually arrived.

Girdle of Magenta and Petunia Colored Posies

A peasant's tunic was the inspiration for this quaint frock developed in royal velvet. The underskirt is of magenta crepe, and the same lovely color is used to form narrow bands on the collar and cuffs. The girdle of magenta and petunia colored flowers is worked in yarn.

Wearing the Green

Many women, if they follow fashions, will be dressed in green. The trend will not be confined to one shade; there are scores, such as lettuce, absinthe, luvain, pea, sea, string bean, epinard, chartreuse, toucan, myrtle, ivy, bottle, billiard, reptile and a score of others.

To Hold Your Train

In some of the new evening cloaks there is a loop of georgette or velvet through which the train of the evening gown is pulled. Thus it is safely out of the way. So many of the new evening frocks have long sashes that drag on the floor, or odd trains of some sort, that this loop is truly useful.

Snakes Menace India

Snakes form the deadliest menace to the people of India, according to statistics recently issued here.

While the death toll attributed to the depredations of the large jungle beasts were only 3,000 last year, snakes were responsible for the deaths of nearly 20,000 people. Bengal tops the list of states, with 4,000 persons killed, while the Punjab had only seven of its inhabitants poisoned.

Bread Creates "Pep"

A great scientist tells the value of bread as food. In McCall's Magazine, Dr. E. V. McCullum, of the school of hygiene and health of Johns Hopkins university, announces:

"We eat for two distinct purposes. One is to keep the body healthy; the other to provide energy. We eat some foods primarily for their energy values. Bread is one of the latter foods."

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture. It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery. Will you let me help you select the memorial for your lot. Call at show room. NO AGENTS.

HILLS OF DAKOTAMay Carve Washington-Lincoln Statue on "Needles."Rapid City, S. D.—A national shrine,
modeled from one of nature's vagaries,
and situated in the beautiful Black
hills of South Dakota, is the vision of Gutzon Borglum, the sculptor, and a
group of South Dakota residents who
view the Black hills as the greatest
undeveloped wonderland in the United States.The shrine would be a monument of Washington and Lincoln. Carving
side by side, their figures carved from
a huge needle-like piece of granite
which towers 200 feet above its immediate base.Borglum has long held this vision.
He expects soon to visit South Dakota
to discuss details for raising the
$1,000,000 necessary to its completion.

Shaft Visible Many Miles.

In the Black hills there is a group
of rocks that rise perpendicularly as
high as a fifteen or more story office
building. The rocks are known as the Needles. One of these has with-
stood the elements more than its
neighbors and there remains a wide
base from which there ascends a shaft
tapering almost to a point.This shaft rises to a height greater
than any elevation east of the Rockies
except Mount Harney, itself in the Black hills.Situating among virtual mountains
of red, purple and gold, their slopes
dotted with towering pines, the proposed memorial rock may be seen for
miles before the long, slowly ascend-
ing trail finally brings the visitor
within its shadow.Here Borglum found a setting for a national memorial.

Financial Backing in View.

With the advice of several South
Dakota residents, Borglum chose as
the characters for this memorial
Washington and Lincoln, two outstanding figures in American history, whom
he knew would appeal to the patriotism of every corner of the United States.Information reaching supporters of the memorial in this state indicates
that the financial problem will be met.
Several wealthy persons have listened
sympathetically to the plan, and it is understood one New York multi-millionaire virtually has agreed to finance
the project single-handed.Foreign Devils Lead Chinese to Ice CreamPeking—For countless centuries it has been the custom of Chinese people to avoid any form of cold drinks,
even in the hottest weather.With the advent of bobbed hair,
popular dances, jazz bands and other modern things, ice drinks are now in demand.The Chinese have succumbed to the lure of ice cream. Cafes where ice
are sold have sprung into existence
everywhere and are doing a large business.At street corners, where vendors formerly sold tea, are stands with ice cream freezers and mineral waters.The cream is served in egg cups, and coolies and others swarm around the sellers, enjoying what in Chinese is termed "frozen delight."BUCHANAN'S LOG CABIN TO BE SAVEDBirthplace of Former Presi-

worn log cabin in which James Buchanan, fifteenth President of the United States, was born on April 23,
1791, is to be restored and preserved
as a memorial to Pennsylvania's only President.Built originally by the President's father in the mountains of southern Pennsylvania, the cabin was moved
nearly a century ago to Mercersburg,
where it has since stood, used much of
the time as a tenant house. Now it is
being torn down and moved again;
this time to Chambersburg, where it will be rebuilt on a lot near the center of the town.The elder Buchanan was an Irish-
man who came to America soon after the Revolution, and set out to make a
living as a trader among the Indians
and frontiersmen. Choosing a lonely
spot in the hills north of the Maryland border he built two log cabins,
one for a home and the other a store.
In time his place became known to the traders as "Stony Batter."His trading operations proved so profitable that Buchanan finally moved
to Mercersburg and from there he sent
his son to school and later to college.
The younger man became a leader in
local affairs and represented his district in the state legislature and in congress. In 1856 he was elected President. He died in Lancaster in 1866, and was buried there.In later years the President's sisters
erected a stone pyramid at the site of
his birthplace. This stands today, hidden in a grove of pine trees.The oak logs of the old cabin are well preserved.13,000 Ohio Girls Learn

Went to the "Roots"
of Patient's TroubleDr. S. G. Schaefer tells an amusing
story about the modern doctor's practice of extracting teeth as a cure for so many ailments."A man went into a clinic one day
and complained that he had lots of trouble biting his finger nails.""Well, the medical staff in charge
did everything they could to find out
what was the cause of this pernicious
psychiatric phenomenon. They couldn't find the cause anywhere. As a last resort they looked at the man's teeth.There was something suspicious about them. They pulled out a couple of them. Instantly the patient showed improvement! Encouraged by their success, they pulled them all out! Their
patient pronounced himself completely cured and from that day to this he
has never bitten his finger nails!"

List of Requisites Needed for Success

It is possible to codify the qualities that surely lead to success. Success, has often been termed luck, chance, hard work, effort, application, etc., but we are now told that success is a science as truly as the science of health or the science of natural phenomena. And in line with this trend of modern thought to reduce success to certain rules fifty of the cardinal principles or laws are tabulated, obedience to which, it is held, are as necessary to attain any degree of success in life as it is for us to obey the laws of nature to keep our bodies healthy.

These fifty cardinal principles are as follows: Self-control, finding one's self, morality, health, will power, love or charity, knowledge of human nature, perseverance, ambition, development of inward richness and self-enjoyment, understanding, co-operation, optimism, self-reliance, rationality, common sense, honesty, loyalty, dependability, sincerity, love of the beautiful, naturalness, patience, right attitude toward life and work, altruism, industriousness, reverence for God and elders, ability to see ahead, contentment with nothing short of the best, economy, ability to think clearly and speak forcefully, discretion, ability to execute plans, fair play, broad-mindedness, courage, imagination, system, initiative, thoroughness, punctuality, personality, training, self-inventory, memory accuracy, truth to one's self, courtesy, determination.

No attempt is made to place these in the order of their relative importance with probably the exception of the first one, self-control.

Recalls Big Theft

The arrest of Romain Durignac in Paris recently for the theft of a pair of slippers worth perhaps half a dollar recalled the swindle he perpetrated with his sister, Therese Humbert, 23 years ago. On the strength of an alleged fabulous fortune left them in a locked safe, which was not to be opened until a certain date, the pair borrowed millions on millions of francs. They numbered among their victims politicians, diplomats and many of the leading figures of French society. Finally, the finger of suspicion pointed to them, and the authorities insisted that they open the safe, which was found to be empty. The brother and sister had fled, but they were captured in Spain, and the proceedings of their trial in Paris filled the French and foreign newspapers of the day.

Tunnies Worry Fishermen

Mediterranean tunnies have become common along the Norwegian coast, and are being exported by the thrifty Norwegian fishermen. The "hackerel giant," as it is called in Norway, is one of the strongest and swiftest fish known, and it may run to 1,000 pounds in weight. A comparatively small one recently netted off Grimsby, England, weighed 400 pounds. At Esbjerg, Denmark, a 600-pounder has been brought in. Attributing their presence to the warm summer, English fishermen say that large schools are roaming about the North sea, creating terror among other fish. Some think that the absence of herring shoals from their customary haunts is due to the presence of these hungry Mediterranean marauders.

Worth Borrowing

Here is a story about Dr. William Norman Guthrie, the well-known New York minister. At a dinner party a minister from the West enthusiastically described the success of a charity sermon he had preached. Three and four figure subscriptions, he said, came in galore at the sermon's end. The collection plate was massed high with banknotes of large denomination and some ladies even went so far as to turn in jeweled bracelets, rings and watches. The silence was impressive when the western minister finished. Then Doctor Guthrie leaned across the table toward him and said: "My dear sir, could you lend me that sermon?"

Boost for Johnson's

The story about a certain pill manufacturer working the name of his product into the hymn, "Hark the herald angels sing," may or may not be true; but the following actually appeared in a church paper: "Why I attend prayer meeting. To me the prayer meeting is an excellent carbon remover for the heart, and as Johnson's Carbon Remover is for our machines, so is Glendale Presbyterian Prayer Meeting for me.—Mary R. Milton."

"Black Glass" Enables Photograph in Darkness

Tokyo.—After several years' investigation, Jusei Sugie, a scientist of the experimental station of Osaka, is reported to have invented a black glass of special kind which is expected to prove of great military value. It is said the glass is opaque to all but ultraviolet rays, and by its use, battle formations or the movements of an enemy can be easily photographed in darkness without detection. Moving pictures, it is claimed, can also be taken in the dark by its use. Experiments with the new glass made recently in the presence of Rear Admiral Muto are said to have proved a complete success. The inventor declares the glass will be found valuable in medical treatment.

Decatur, Ark.—The old oaken bucket, with its iron-bound staves of the days prior to the discovery of germs, has become an outlaw, but the old town well that went with it here and which did valiant service in the pre-germ days is being harnessed to the necessities of modernity.

The town well is to be used as a cooler for a modern, sanitary drinking fountain. Pipes from the town water works are being laid to the well, and a coil reaching to the bottom is to be placed inside the shaft and under the water. Water from the waterworks will run through the pipe and thence to a drinking fountain on the busiest corner in the town.

AMUSEMENTS

It is doubtful if any newspaper story has ever been brought to the screen with such a vivid and true-to-life background as that which enhances "Headlines," the new Encore drama with Alice Joyce, Malcolm McGregor and Virginia Lee Corbin playing the leading roles. It is said that newspaper men with long training in this profession saw to it that the back grounds and characters really represented the great newspaper profession.

E. H. Griffith, the director, was a former newspaper man. Mr. Griffith went to the offices of the New York World for many big scenes. Bayard Swope, managing editor of the World gave him much assistance, Raymond Harris, a former San Francisco newspaper man wrote the titles and was assisted by Herbert Roemer, another newspaper man. Peter Milne and Arthur Hoerl, who wrote the scenario were both newspaper men at one time. Some of the players have also had newspaper experience.

In this sterling story, the cub reporter does not dash hither and you and finally scoop the world and win the daughter of the managing editor; the reporters do not tote huge notebooks around and write like mad-fire when some one talks; the city editor isn't quite as hard as nails and the sob writer has some of the weaknesses that befall the people about whom she writes.

Alice Joyce has the leading role in this drama and she is capably assisted by Virginia Lee Corbin and Malcolm McGregor, as well as other leading players.

Discourage Rats Around the Farm

Rodent Is Robber and Pilferer and Lives Off of Various Products.

One of the pests with which the average farmer has to contend is the rat. He is by nature a robber and a pilferer, living on the products of the farm, and giving no return. The United States government says that this boarder who pays no board destroys more than $200,000,000 worth of crops every year. In addition to this money loss he is known as an active agent in the spreading of disease. This loss and the danger of spreading disease to stock and members of the family can be successfully and completely eliminated by the use of concrete in floors, basements and foundations of farm buildings. The rat's one impassable barrier is concrete floors and walls. These will stop him and effectually cut off his food supply. When this is accomplished Mr. Rat will hunt a more fertile plundering ground.

Rat Menace Lessened.

Where farm buildings are constructed of concrete the menace of the rat is materially lessened. If buildings are constructed with concrete floors, lower parts of walls, and especially concrete foundations, there are no pockets in which the rats can hide or make their homes. If the use of concrete is extended to the construction of the feeding floors the rat menace has been absolutely eliminated.

A concrete silo is ratproof because the rat cannot gnaw through its walls or get at the silage in any other way. The same is true of a concrete corn crib which is the favorite feeding place of rats. Thus the corn is saved for the stock or market. In a concrete poultry house the poultry are free from the danger of attack by rats. This will develop a feeling of security on the part of the hens, which will manifest itself in the greater number of eggs produced. With concrete floors and walls the entire place can easily be swept and kept clear of all accumulations under which an occasional rat might hide.

Rats Kept Out.

In a concrete granary there will be no rats to consume or destroy what the farmer has stored for his own use. The rat cannot gnaw through the floor or get in in any way excepting through the door. A concrete feeding floor or barnyard pavement prevents the rats from consuming the grain and feed distributed to the live stock.

Concrete should be used in the construction of farm buildings as far as possible. It certainly should be used in all foundations, floors and lower parts of walls of larger buildings. Smaller buildings should be entirely built of it. Concrete construction is ratproof. It conserves stock, grains, feeds and supplies. It saves poultry. It protects your family against diseases spread by the rat.

Plowing Deep in Garden Will Give Best Results

"Plow deep while sluggards sleep" is as true today as it was a hundred and fifty years ago, but it is a slogan which is not as frequently acted upon as it should be in gardens. It is said that in European gardens which are spaded, the garden is often worked two or even three spits deep, a "spit" being the depth to which a spade can be driven. Now this depth may not be necessary but a garden plowed or spaded ten inches deep will give enough better results than six-inch plowing to make the work well worth while.

At the same time the gardener should remember that in any work of this kind, increasing the depth of plowing must be done gradually. If the garden or field has been plowed only six and one-half inches deep, better increase the depth of plowing by a half inch or an inch each year, rather than increasing the whole depth all at once. Too much of the subsoil must not be brought to the surface at one time. As you turn the soil, bringing up an inch or so of new subsoil, mix the ground thoroughly with the new subsoil, and if possible with manure or compost. In the fall you will be able to get one inch in this way and then in the spring you can get a little more, and the following fall you can go down another inch if you choose.

"Well begun, half done," is so true in the garden that it is hard to pay too much attention to the plowing.

For That Rainy Day

I do not know of a method whereby returns from farming can be made uniform year after year. But I do know that it is possible for farmers to lay aside in years of good profits reserves upon which they can draw in years that are not so good. I can not help but feel that too many farmers have reinvested their surplus earnings in high-priced land when they should have kept at least a part of them in more liquid reserves upon which they could readily draw in times of depression.—Secretary Jardine.

Don't Crowd Chickens

Avoid filling the chicken house beyond its capacity with chickens. Each bird ought to have at least eight inches of space on the roost. There should be one open nest to every eight hens or where trapnests are used, one nest will accommodate four hens if the nests are visited every two hours.

F. L. Fickardt.
Dear Sir:—
Send me at once two bottles of your Poultry Medicine. Enclosed find one dollar.

Baltimore, Ohio, Dec. 24, 1924.
Mr. Fickardt.
Dear Sir:—
A few words in regard to your Poultry Drops. My flock had a sneezing cold that developed into Deadly Roup. After I began with your medicine I lost only a few birds which were badly infected, the sneezing in the rest of my flock began to disappear.

In a few weeks' time there was a great difference in my flock of 200 English Leghorn pullets; they began to develop and get red combs and wattles. I am sure Fickardt's Roup and Cholera Drops will help in egg production, for a healthy bird is bound to lay if it gets the proper feeds.

Yours respectfully,
Elmer Raber.

"EQUINOCTIAL STORMS" MYTH

Have No Standing in Meteorology, Says Weather Bureau Expert.

Washington.—This is the storm time of the year, but there are no such things as "equinoctial storms." They are a myth and have no standing in meteorology, according to a statement by the American Nature association. This will shock thousands who have carried from school days some hazy information about "equinoctial storms," such as caught the Shenandoah. They are line squalls.

"There is no maximum of storm frequency according to statistics, either in this country or in Europe, close to the date of either equinox," according to the American Nature association, which publishes an extended statement on the point in Nature magazine, by C. F. Talman of the United States weather bureau. "Of course in the long run many storms do occur about these dates, just as they occur at all other times," the writer points out, "but there is no scientific reason for supposing their occurrence can be connected in any way with the sun's passage over what the schoolboy described as a 'menagerie lion running around the earth'."

Looked for in Autumn.
An "equinoctial" is looked for in the United States particularly in the autumn. The autumnal equinox occurs during the season of West India hurricanes, and it occasionally happens that storms of this character sweep up our eastern seaboard within a week or two of the date in question, extending their influence far inland. These events have probably helped to foster the widespread belief in an autumnal equinoctial storm.

"The Shenandoah was caught in a line squall," the statement continues. "A balloon or airplane would not have been exposed to similar strain and would probably have weathered the gale."

"In fact, part of the wrecked airship, containing some of the gasbags, was wafted to earth 12 miles from the scene of the disaster, carrying several members of the crew to a safe landing."

"The squall that caused this tragedy of the air takes its place in the catalogue of historic storms. It brought to general knowledge the fact, previously little realized except by weather men and airmen, that storms can wreak their fury by blowing vertically as well as horizontally. It also naturalized the term 'line-squall' in the popular vocabulary."

"Violent upward and downward movements of the air prevail in all squalls and thunderstorms. This fact has been known for many years, but it has only recently assumed practical importance. Formerly only the birds and occasional balloonists were whirled aloft or dashed downward by vertical gales, but today such gales threaten the lives of an army of aeronauts."

"Squalls, like tornadoes, are of such brief duration and generally of such limited area that they defy prediction by means of the ordinary machinery of weather forecasting."

"As to storms, the 'Big Wind of Ireland,' January 6-7, 1839, according to contemporary newspaper accounts, was one of the great weather disasters of modern times."

"The 'Great Storm' of 1703 is supposed to have been the most severe tempest that ever visited the British Isles. It cost the lives of more than 8,000 seamen, including some 1,500 men of the royal navy."

"The Barbados hurricane of 1780 was probably the most destructive hurricane that has occurred in the West Indies."

"Saxby's gale swept over eastern Canada with terrific force October 4, 1869. It owes its name to the fact that it was predicted by a Lieutenant Saxby of the British navy."

Historic Storms.
"In the Backergunge cyclone, October, 1876, more than 100,000 people were drowned by the storm waves over the Ganges delta."

"The blizzard of March 11-14, 1888, also known as the 'great March blizzard,' 'the New York blizzard,' and, in New Hampshire, as the 'town-meeting storm,' is historic."

"The Samoa hurricane of March 16, 1889, wrecked American and German warships in the harbor of Apia, with heavy loss of life."

"The St. Louis tornado of May 27, 1896, was the most destructive of the three tornadoes that have occurred in large American cities, the others being the Louisville tornado of 1890 and the Omaha tornado of 1913."

"The Portland storm of November 26-27, 1898, is the classic example of the danger of ignoring storm signals. The steamer Portland, which furnished the object lesson in this case, was one of more than 140 vessels wrecked by the storm on the New England coast."

"In the Galveston hurricane, September 8, 1900, there was great loss of life and property. This was mainly the work of water rather than wind. A less destructive Galveston hurricane occurred August 16-17, 1915."

QUALITY AND PALATABILITY IN MEAT SUBJECT OF STUDY

Experimental Work to Be Conducted in Twenty-Nine State Agricultural Experiment Stations.

Chicago.—Plans of procedure for a national study to determine the factors responsible for quality and palatability in meat have been definitely napped out by a special committee of live live stock and meat specialists headed by Dean F. B. Mumford of the college of agriculture, University of Missouri. Membership of this committee, which was appointed by the American Society of Animal Production, includes E. W. Sheets, chief of the animal husbandry division, bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture, secretary; Prof. M. D. Helser, chief in meat investigation, Iowa agricultural experiment station; Prof. H. J. Gramlich, animal husbandman, Nebraska agricultural experiment station, and Dr

Dean F. B. Mumford.

C. Robert Moulton, director of the department of nutrition, Institute of American Meat Packers. The experimental work decided upon by the committee will be carried out by 29 state agricultural experiment stations. It will include experiments on feeding, breeding, methods of slaughtering, methods of cooking and other phases of the subject.

The study is sponsored by the National Live Stock and Meat board, an organization interested in extensive research and education regarding meat. Experimental stations co-operating with the board are Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana, Maryland, Minnesota, New Mexico, New Jersey, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oregon, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, South Dakota, Missouri, Mississippi, Montana, Nebraska, Texas, Virginia, West Virginia, Wisconsin, Wyoming and New Hampshire.

Head Hunting in Luzon Replaced by Tame Games

New York.—"I was surprised and somewhat disappointed to learn when I reached the Philippines that head-hunting tribes had given up their ancient pastime under persuasion of American officials," declared Alvin Coombe, who recently has been around the world with his family.

"While I didn't get the thrill I expected, my curiosity brought me one of the most interesting bits of information I picked up during the entire trip."

"An army officer, who had held some administrative job in the northern part of Luzon island, where head-hunting had its greatest vogue, told me they had changed their habits by teaching them American sports."

"A successful collector of skulls enjoyed the same prestige in his community as a successful collector of home runs on an American baseball team."

"It was sound reasoning, and I think it could be applied in other parts of the world where half-civilized peoples who have no sports amuse themselves and reveal the competitive spirit in feuds and prolonged murder tournaments."

"I think the most attractive part of the new school of recreation to the savage is the gallery his games attract. When he hunted heads he hunted alone. He gets more kicks from the cheers of the spectators at the games than from the deferred praise for a successful head hunt."

His Attempt

"My least boy, Bearcat, got sorter f'iled, as it were, at his brother, Runt, yiste'd'y and hit him on the head with the ax," related Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge.

"Great guns!" ejaculated an acquaintance. "What was he doing with the ax, anyhow?"

"Trying to —yaw-w-wn—make Runt eat it, or something that-a-way, according to what the rest of the kids said afterwards."—Kansas City Star.

Heat with Distinction

At last it is proved that a home heater can be good looking—ornamental, if you will—as well as a practical heat-producing utility.

The Mueller Furnacette marks the greatest advance in home heating equipment since the invention of the heating stove. It is the joint creation of master furniture designers and skilled heating engineers. There is distinction in every line of its well-balanced, walnut-grained, vitreous enamel cabinet.

And as for heat—never was there an above-floor heater of any kind that could compare with the Furnacette in heating efficiency! It heats the whole house by continuously re-circulating warm, moist air thru all the rooms. It provides more comfortable, more uniform heat than two or three stoves combined, yet uses no more fuel than an ordinary heating stove.

Sold on convenient monthly payments.

BASKETBALL SEASON OPENS THANKSGIVING

Monte Beavers Will Bring His Newark Team to The C. A. C. Thursday.

With a "Monte Beaver" coached team from the Newark Y. M. C. A. as their opponents the C. A. C. basketball boys will get under way Thanksgiving night.

The club has been fortunate in that they have in their line-up this year the entire personnel of last year's team. That team of young bloods whom contributed so much to the already excellent reputation of the club's basket shooters. Added to this personnel is some new material. Not exactly new to the community but to the representatives of the club. 'All of whom have made a name for themselves not only in high school athletics but also in independent athletics, namely Dwight Steele, Orville Smith and Eph Merriman. With these three men added to the already strong team of last season fans are sure of a bang-up outfit in Circleville this season and one that will be hard to beat.

"Monte" tells us he is bringing to Circleville this year the best team ever. The club boys say they are from Missouri and have been practicing hard and consistently for the past two months to fit themselves to prove to "Monte" that he is in error, therefore local fans are sure of some real thrills when they come down to the gym Thanksgiving night to see the curtain raiser of the 1925-26 basketball season.

Sphinx Gets Backache in Her, or His, Old Age

Cairo.—The celebrated sphinx of Giza, who, historians believe, is between 5,000 and 6,000 years old, is having trouble with her (or his) back in her (or his) old age.

The back of the giant figure, which has withstood the wear of several millenniums, is showing signs of cracking, and the antiquities department of the Egyptian government is taking measures to strengthen it. The department is also clearing away the desert sands, which are constantly encroaching on the famous monument and already cover a part of it.

Scientists Plan to Make Observations in Sumatra.

Washington.—An eight months' trip half way around the world for two minutes of actual work will be the experience of a party from the naval observatory that has left to observe the total eclipse of the sun in January, 1926, at Sumatra in the Dutch East Indies.

British, German and French parties also will be at Sumatra, as well as a party from Swarthmore college. The Italians will have an observation party in eastern Africa.

The American naval group will endeavor to observe phenomena in connection with the upward curve of the sunspot cycle, and will study the sun's corona as well. Motion pictures and color plates of the eclipse will be made.

Special attention will be given to the sun's gases, which scientists say extend as far as 2,000,000 miles from the sun's rim when the moon blots out its face.

The party will travel on the naval minesweeper Bittern from Manila to Sumatra. It expects to reach its destination in October, and the three months' interim before the eclipse occurs on January 14—visible only from Africa to the Indian ocean—will be passed in erecting and housing a telescope tower.

Lieut. Henry C. Kellers, a naval doctor, has been detailed to the expedition at the request of the Smithsonian Institution, to collect specimens of birds, mammals and insects. The others in the party are Capt. Frank B. Littell, professor of mathematics; George H. Peters, associate astronomer; G. M. Raynsford, junior astronomer, and Dr. John A. Anderson of Mount Wilson observatory, Pasadena, Cal., physicist.

Trapper Takes Flivver Into Haunts of Eskimo

Herb Lake, Man.—Far to the north of here, a small automobile chugs its way over the ice and snow, the first vehicle of its kind to invade the land of the Eskimo.

It was taken into the far north by John Harris, who has returned to his home there after marketing a large number of furs here.

On his visit to civilization, Harris brought his Eskimo wife and three children, "just to give them a treat," and if wide and wondering eyes were a criterion, it was a treat for them.

When he returned, he took with him the small automobile, besides a large stock of provisions and goods, to be used in trading with the natives. So far as is known here, it will be the first automobile in this section of the north.

Harris also took a power boat built in sections, and when he left the rail head, he planned to put the boat together, transfer the automobile engine to the boat, and proceed under that power as far as possible.

Harris said he would have no trouble running the automobile over the hard packed snow as he made his rounds in trading with the Eskimos.

Planes Find Runaways

Army planes from Crissey field, California, lent help recently to the authorities of San Quentin prison when six trustees escaped in a launch. The planes scanned every launch in the bay until at last they sighted the fugitives. Then they signaled their discovery to the officers on shore and the prisoners were recaptured.

Rail Office Court

At Wolf Point, Mont., a railroad office has, for the first time in America probably, become the county courthouse. The Great Northern Railroad company moved its division headquarters to Havre, and Roosevelt county, while it is erecting a suitable county building, has moved in on a three years' lease.

Once Rich Woman Works to Keep Child

Boston.—Facts pertaining to "the mysterious disappearance" of Harold Lawton, son of a prominent family and son of the late Superior Court Judge George F. Lawton were made public by Walter I. Badger, counsel for the seventeen-year-old daughter, Laura, who is objecting to the probate of the will of her grandfather which cut her off from the $75,000 estate with the sum of $500.

A school teacher, Gladys Dunbar, was partly the cause of Lawton's desertion of his wife and child six years ago, the counsel stated. As a result of the desertion, Mrs. Harold Lawton, receiving no aid from her husband's people, was obliged to give up her cultured home in Winchester and go out and work as a domestic in order that she might keep her little girl with her.

Both sides have announced their intention to fight to the last straw over the will. The father of the little seventeen-year old girl whose desertion caused untold suffering to her and her mother, is believed to be dead and therefore, her counsel states, she is entitled to her share in grandfather's estate.
